

values so degraded that we feel we deserve a "reward" for doing what we're supposed to do?

A moron? Hardly. Here's a man who has demonstrated that he has sufficient intelligence to know that some things are more valuable than money. Things like integrity, honesty, and doing the right thing. Thank you, Mr. Estrada, for your example. May your tribe increase!

Now then, truthfully, what would you do if you found their money? Give it some thought.

Hi Brother Holloway,

Greetings to you and to the Church. I am sorry that I have not emailed you for a week now. Last Thursday, we left for Bokkos for four days evangelism program. It was hectic period, but full of blessings and experiences. We knocked doors in the morning and had open-air preaching in the evening. Several people were reached with the gospel. We had three baptisms. The place is a hard ground. We are praying God to strengthen those people who took the courage to become Christians. I returned to Jos with Fever. On Monday, I went to hospital and I was told that I have typhoid and malaria at the same time. I am still under treatment. The drugs make me so weak. But I trust God that He will continue to give me strength. Please, do send my love to everyone there. I appreciate your prayers for us and your love.

Grace and Peace,
Tom

Mail From Paris (Rec'd April 20, 2008)

Dear Ones in Christ,

Thank you for your financial help, love, and prayers. Today was Emmanuel's 11th birthday. Grandpa made a cake and Grandma made jello blocks. His party was nice. Lily is doing better but hasn't had much appetite. She had tubes put in her ears Tuesday.

Love You All,

Rose and Roland

Sir,

I'm sorry for not being heard for a while now. Actually everything is alright. When I returned from the eastern provincial city of Bertoua after the 4-day youth forum, I tried to email you but there was trouble with the internet service in my area in Limbe. The explanation by the service providers was that a temporary disconnection occurred as a result of the bad weather due to the heavy rainfall which Limbe has been experiencing. In fact, there have been occasions when the computer went off after I laboriously typed a mail and was about to click the send button. When such a thing happens, the whole mail disappears as the computer begins to reboot. I pray the internet service be more dependable so I can write you as often as I can. I'm sorry about this situation.
